Arkansas Johnson Leads

Jim Johnson, foe of forced integration and an avowed enemy of the national administration's socialistic, inflationary and wasteful programs, jolted pollsters and political prognosticators all the way down to their heels when he out-distanced six other men in the race for governor in Arkansas' Democratic first primary election a few days ago.

In a way, Johnson made the political forecasters look as if they were fulfilling the Biblical prophesy of "The first shall be last and the last shall be first." The seers of the political arena had predicted Johnson would run fourth among the four top men in the race. He shattered these predictions and climbed over the heads of his three most-favored opponents to gain a substantial votemargin over his nearest rival.

Frank Holt, who ran second in the race and who was said by all his opponents to have the backing of the administration of Governor Orval Faubus, will enter the runoff primary election August 9 against Johnson, Many believe Holt's chances of winning in that contest are not good for the reason that an administration-supported man often gets nearly his total vote in the first primary, whereas a more independent man can be expected to pick up a large percentage of the votes of the defeated candidates.

It is to the credit of Johnson that he defeated a number of highly - rated and highly - placed men. Both Johnson and Holt have served on the Supreme Court in Arkansas. Among the eliminated candidates, the top two of whom had been expected to run ahead of Johnson, were former Congressmen Brooks Hays and Dale Alford, both of Little Rock; Sam Boyce of Newport, young prosecutor, who ran on a reform platform; Raymond Rebsamen of Little Rock, businessman and civic leader, and Kenneth Sulcer of Osceola, a state legislator.

Among this group, which might be described as "elite," Johnson polled more than 15,000 more votes than his nearest opponent, Holt Johnson's vote, with nearly all boxes in, was 100.851, while Holt's was 84,471. Votes of other candidates were listed as Hays, 57,851; Alford, 49,830; Boyce 45,782; Rebsamen, 31,418, and Sulcer, 16,951.

Johnson, in conducting his first primary campaign, had said he had only one apology to make and that was that his last name happened to be the same as that of President Johnson. Except for the name, Jim Johnson said, there was a "parting of the ways" between himself and the nation's chief executive on internal matters of the nation.

Because Jim Johnson come out vigorously against the administration's economic and political extravagance, while the other candidates had little to say on this matter, it was generally believed that Johnson not only ran successfully against state administration forces but against national administration forces as well. Jim Johnson accused other candidates of "pussyfooting" on such national administration issues as forced integration, "slush fund" projects. (such as the anti - poverty campaign), centralizations of government and the move toward socialization and eventual dictatorship. Jim Johnson came out strongly against these policies of the national administration.

Jim Johnson's first-round victory was seen as proof that Arkansas people don't like the way the integration campaign, with its riots, lootings and killings, has been going and that they are not in accord with the federal government's assault on states' rights and the rights of individuals, particularly in regard to the right to conduct one's business as he pleases and to choose one's as-

In the Republican primary, Winthrop Rockefeller, a transplanted New Yorker, described as a rather extreme liberal but an Arkansas promoter of some repute, as well as being a brother of Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, won the nomination easily over his single opponent and will enter the general election against the winner of the contest between Johnson and Holt. Johnson is believed to have a better chance than Holt to defeat Rockefeller.

Johnson's election probably would put Arkansas firmly in the conservative fold.

Negro Hits Poverty War

huge expenditure and tiny benefits of the so-called "War on Poverty," and what it has failed to do, new voices are being raised in condemnation of what this war

Some look upon the "Anti-Poverty" war as a means of stopping neighborhood, community and city progress more effectively than power brakes bring an automobile to a halt.

Bryce Porter, a Negro resident of Harlem in New York City, is such a critic of the "Anti-Poverty" program. He sees in it unerring ability to obliterate progress which has already been chalked

Porter is a longtime resident of Harlem, is a shop owner and is a man who is concerned about his neighborhood and has tried to do something about it. He gave this succinct summation:

"Things are worse than ever in Harlem and getting worse all the time. The 'Poverty' program does more harm than good."

Some 20 years ago, Porter started his own war on poverty. It consisted of such seemingly insignificant battles as teaching neighborhood boys how to open savings accounts. He learned early in his personal crusade that the more directly the boys participated in their own self - help, the more satisfaction they derived from it. Help which came from too far afield lost much of its attraction and did little good.

Later, Porter and some of his friends tried their most ambitious undertaking. Why not get several hundred boys out of their environment for a while by establishing

With the nation aghast at the a summer camp in the country. That is when they first ran into the federal poverty octopus.

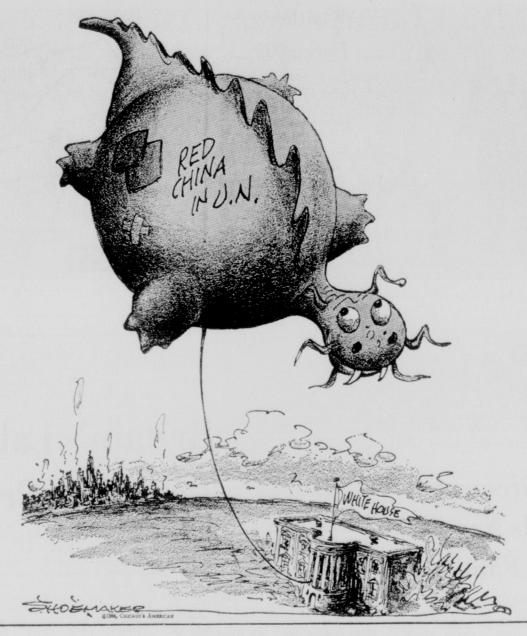

> Bankers, businessmen and others who normally would have donated the relatively small finances required to open and run the camp refused to give anything. Wasn't this the responsibility of the Poverty Corps and weren't they already donating to the project through taxes?

This was another dramatic illustration of the fact that when the government starts handing out doles, people want to stop doing anything for themselves. They are ready to sit down and let the government do the whole thing.

The idea for the camp was dropped, the summer camp was never developed, the boys remained in their familiar haunts and the whole community succumbed to the concept that only the federal government should help the poor.

Porter did not submit so easily to that idea. He still believes in democracy, free enterprise and the concept that those who help themselves not only do the most good but get the most enjoyment

What success Porter will have still does not depend on those who would benefit by getting into new, wholesome environment. Instead, it depends on how seriously self - help has been undermined by the unsuccessful attempts of a bureaucratic government to serve as a crutch for those who have, heretofore, been given new energy, new insight and new opportunity by the efforts of forward-looking citizens of the community.

Defense Congress' Burden

That Provision Is Made In U.S. Constitution

THE CONSTITUTION of the United States says that Congress shall provide for the common defense. Not the President, nor the Secretary of Defense, not the career officers of the Armed Forces, but Congress shall pro-

The question of what the word "provide" means has never been more complex than it is today. When the authors of the Constitution used the word, military science was at a standstill and 'provide' clearly referred to sizes of forces, amounts of standardized equipment and appropriations therefor. Under "provide," too, Congress a few years later reached a decision to establish a professional Navy.

Today the so-called science of weaponry is in a whirlwind of change. Not only new weapons, but new systems of weapons suc ceed one another faster than wars occur to test them. No one can predict with assurance what weapons will work tomorrow. Who, for example, predicted in 1960 the great military success the jungle-hovering helicop-

DOES "PROVIDE" in the Constitution mean merely providing money? Shall military professionals and civilian officials of the Defense Department of weapons? Or does "provide" impose upon the popularly elected members of the House and

Senate the awesome responsibility of deciding whether to scrap strategic bombers, build missiles to intercept missiles, supply jungle fighters by air instead of by land, or entrust the great striking power of tomorrow's Navy to submarines relaying on nuclear power?

There are no clear answers. The end results appear to involve something of everything. The scientists, the military planners, the tacticians, the arms makers, the financiers, the politicians - all kinds of people get themselves involved. At the present time the Armed Services Committee of the House is de manding that the Secretary of Defense start building a nuclear-powered surface Navy. De fense Secretary Robert S. The present situation is that President Lyndon B. Johnson, for all that he's a graduate of the Senate Armed Service Com mittee, and Secretary McNamara haven't yet spent the money Congress appropriated last year to build a nuclear-powered guided missile frigate. They may not spend the additional funds Congress is authorizing this year to build another frigate. The Pentagon apparently will start building a nuclear - powered air plane carrier, however.

THIS STATE OF affairs doesn't at all mean that the Pentagon refuses to recognize new Naval trends. In the same week that disappointed Congressmen compromised their nuclear Navy fight for this year, the Navy' 41st nuclear submarine skipped down the ways at New Lon-don, Connecticut, and helicopters of the Marine transport Guadalcanal fished a couple of astro the world watched on television Some of those who saw the Guadalcanal on TV may not have realized that while she looked like a carrier and acted like a carrier of warplanes, actually the Guadalcanal's purpose in the Navy is to transport Marines to trouble spots and fly them in helicopters from ship to behindthe-beach landing points. The Guadalcanal is the first of its kind. It is designed to prevent any return of the beach assaults that occurred in World War II.

In presenting 1967 Defense appropriations bill to the House of Representatives recently, Chairman George H. Mahon, Democrat, Texas, put into the Congressional Record a comparison of Pentagon spending for the years 1957-60, when it totalled $156,800,000,000 and the years 1962-65 when it totalled $198,200,-

THE FIRST YEARS were Eisenhower years and the second were Kennedy - Johnson years. Current Viet Nam costs were not involved. This increase in our military forces and in the compensation of the Defense Department's military and civilian personnel accounted for $15,300,000. 000 of the $41,000,000,000. The comparison shows that during the 1962 - 65 period the Army grew from 860,000 to 970,000 men and the number of combatready divisions was raised to 16. The Marine Corps added 15,000 men and the Navy added 50,-000 men and 100 ships.

About $5,900,000,000 of the increase went into new land force weapons and equipment; $3,700,-000,000 for Polaris submarines and for a large increase in the shipbuilding program of the Navy general purposes forces; $3,300,000,000 for 1,318 stratgetic missiles we had in place instead of the 108 in 1961, even though 126 Atlas and 54 Titan missiles had been phased out. # Strike Of Airlines Worth Thesis Topic

THE STUDENT OF American government, looking for a perfect case history of our political system in action, could not ask a better topic for his thesis than the airlines strike of 1966. The bitter dispute has involved questions as new as the jet-liners and as old as Aristotle, but it is likely to leave the greatest of these questions still unan-

What are the permissible limits, in a free society, upon the rights of the individual? And what are the permissible limits upon the powers of the state?

Aristotle merely framed the problem. He could not solve it. Neither can the United States Congress solve it, in this matter of the airlines strike, but the gathering pressures compel the Congress to try. And in making that effort, the Congress must grapple with some stubborn issues of politics and eco-

PERHAPS THE least of the political issues, though it may be the most obvious, goes to the relationship between Johnson and organized labor. Here the honeymoon is over, but the marriage goes on. It is a homely metaphor, but it fits the situation. Those blissful days of 1964, when labor claimed a part of the Johnson landslide, vanished in noisy recriminations last February, when the administration failed to go all-out for nul-lification of the State right-towork laws. The minimum wage bill hasn't passed. Labor's unemployment compensation bill has been wholly rewritten. The AFL-CIO's George Meany has been threatening to go home to

These bonds of matrimony haven't been severed, however and the President, beleaguered other troubles, would prefer to patch up the quarrel. If Mr. Johnson were to ask for drastic legislation of general application to strikes against the national interest, he probably could get it. Congressional tempers are heating up. But the political odds are against his ever asking.

Yet it is part of the beauty of the American political system that counter - forces come into play. For the first week or ten days of this strike, these forces were scarcely felt. The strike was a terrible nuisance, but it had no gut appeal: No children were losing their milk, no troops were endangered, no lights were off.

THEN THE accumulating pressures began to pile up. By

Suddenly, the great, insoluble questions began to cry out for legislative action. The striking members of the International Association of Machinists surely were within their legal rights. They had complied with the applicable Railway Labor Act. They were not compelled to accept the recommendations of any presidential board - even of a presidential board headed by Senator Morse. It was undeniable that the five airlines were racking up some formidable

THE CARRIERS had some impressive rights on their side as well. Eastern Air Lines may have earned $29 million in 1965, but it had lost $50 million in the four preceding years. Trans-World Airlines and United Air Lines have flown through rough financial weather. All five of the companies had accepted the recommendations of the presidential board, and agreed to a little more besides. To yield to the demands of the IAM would commit them to similar surrenders to other unions. They could not cave in without damaging the public interest in lowcost air transportation .

ters of the nation. Because Jim Johnson come out vigorously against the administration's economic and political extravagance, while the other candidates had little to say on this matter, it was generally believed that Johnson not only ran successfully against state administration forces but against national administration forces as well. Jim Johnson accused other candidates of "pussyfooting" on such national administration issues as forced integration, "slush fund" projects, (such as the anti - poverty campaign), centralizations of government and the move toward socialization and eventual dictatorship. Jim Johnson came out strongly against these policies of the national administration.

Jim Johnson's first-round victory was seen as proof that Arkansas people don't like the way the integration campaign, with its riots, lootings and killings, has been going and that they are not in accord with the federal government's assault on states' rights and the rights of individuals, particularly in regard to the right to conduct one's business as he pleases and to choose one's associates.

In the Republican primary, Winthrop Rockefeller, a transplanted New Yorker, described as a rather extreme liberal but an Arkansas promoter of some repute, as well as being a brother of Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, won the nomination easily over his single opponent and will enter the general election against the winner of the contest between Johnson and Holt. Johnson is believed to have a better chance than Holt to defeat Rockefeller.

Johnson's election probably would put Arkansas firmly in the conservative fold.

Negro Hits Poverty War

With the nation aghast at the huge expenditure and tiny benefits of the so-called "War on Poverty," and what it has failed to do, new voices are being raised in condemnation of what this war has done.

Some look upon the "Anti-Poverty" war as a means of stopping neighborhood, community and city progress more effectively than power brakes bring an automobile to a halt.

Bryce Porter, a Negro resident of Harlem in New York City, is such a critic of the "Anti-Poverty" program. He sees in it unerring ability to obliterate progress which has already been chalked

"Things are worse than ever in Harlem and getting worse all the time. The 'Poverty' program does more harm than good."

Some 20 years ago, Porter started his own war on poverty. It consisted of such seemingly insignificant battles as teaching neighborhood boys how to open savings accounts. He learned early in his personal crusade that the more directly the boys participated in their own self - help, the more satisfaction they derived from it. Help which came from too far afield lost much of its attraction and did little good.

Later, Porter and some of his friends tried their most ambitious undertaking. Why not get several hundred boys out of their environment for a while by establishing a summer camp in the country. That is when they first ran into the federal poverty octopus.

Bankers, businessmen and others who normally would have donated the relatively small finances required to open and run the camp refused to give anything. Wasn't this the responsibility of the Poverty Corps and weren't they already donating to the project through taxes?

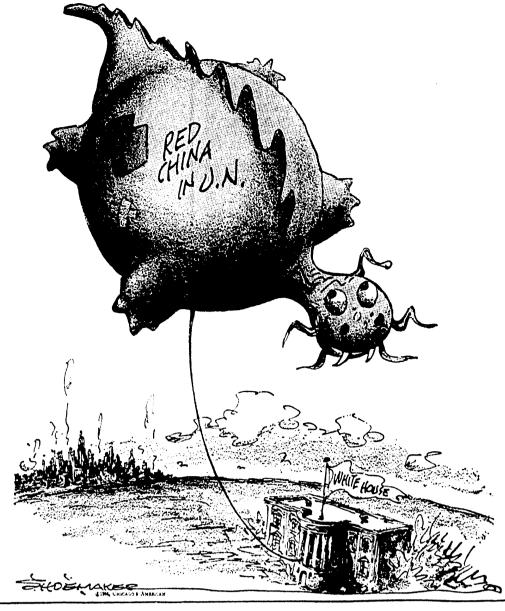

This was another dramatic illustration of the fact that when the government starts handing out doles, people want to stop doing anything for themselves. They are ready to sit down and let the government do the whole thing.

The idea for the camp was dropped, the summer camp was never developed, the boys remained in their familiar haunts and the whole community succumbed to the concept that only the federal government should help the poor.

Porter did not submit so easily to that idea. He still believes in democracy, free enterprise and the concept that those who help themselves not only do the most good but get the most enjoyment out of it.

What success Porter will have still does not depend on those who would benefit by getting into new, wholesome environment. Instead, it depends on how seriously self - help has been undermined by the unsuccessful attempts of a bureaucratic government to serve as a crutch for those who have, heretofore, been given new energy, new insight and new opportunity by the efforts of forward-looking citizens of the community.

Defense Congress' Burden

That Provision Is Made In U.S. Constitution

THE CONSTITUTION of the United States says that Congress shall provide for the common defense. Not the President, nor the Secretary of Defense, not the career officers of the Armed Forces, but Congress shall pro-

The question of what the word 'provide' means has never been more complex than it is today. When the authors of the Constitution used the word, military science was at a standstill and "provide" clearly referred to sizes of forces, amounts of standardized equipment and appropriations therefor. Under "provide," too, Congress a few years later reached a decision to establish a professional Navy.

Today the so-called science of weaponry is in a whirlwind of change. Not only new weapons, but new systems of weapons succeed one another faster than wars occur to test them. No one can predict with assurance what weapons will work tomorrow. Who, for example, predicted in 1960 the great military success of the jungle-hovering helicopter in 1965?

DOES "PROVIDE" in the Constitution mean merely providing money? Shall military professionals and civilian officials of the Defense Department do all the picking and choosing of weapons? Or does "provide" impose upon the popularly elected members of the House and

Senate the awesome responsibil- and need to fuel only once in ity of deciding whether to scrap strategic bombers, build missiles to intercept missiles, supply jungle fighters by air instead of by land, or entrust the great striking power of tomorrow's Navy to submarines relaying on nuclear power?

There are no clear answers. The end results appear to involve something of everything. The scientists, the military planners, the tacticians, the arms makers, the financiers, the politicians - all kinds of people get themselves involved. At the present time the Armed Services Committee of the House is demanding that the Secretary of Defense start building a nuclear-powered surface Navy. Defense Secretary Robert S. Me Namara is balking. He sees little future for floating strike forces in a war he thinks will be fought with submarines and mis-

AND IT MUST be admitted that the Navy itself is full of Captains and Commanders who will tell you over a cup of coffee that any next conflict would be conducted under water and in the air for control of surface shipping. WHAT COULD BE more economically encouraging? Here is a broad source not only of economic security, but of the upgrading of skills so crucial at a time when unskilled labor is less and less needed.

Here is a farsighted economic strength standing ready to absorb the time and talents of young men leaving the military, for instance. Here is the answer to much of the opening of opportunity to which so many of our Negro citizens look for a fair and meaningful economic shake.

But it is not to be. The ad ministration n o w officially wants to discourage small business, to restrict opportunity and the future so that it can continue its political plans. Obviously, this administration does not believe in real opportunity at all. It does not want to raise people, it just wants to regiment them, and the way it is passing the buck on inflation provides all the proof that the average citizen should need.

The present situation is that President Lyndon B. Johnson, for all that he's a graduate of the Senate Armed Service Committee, and Secretary McNa-mara haven't yet spent the money Congress appropriated last year to build a nuclear-powered guided missile frigate. They may not spend the additional funds Congress is authorizing this year to build another frigate. The Pentagon apparently will start building a nuclear - powered airplane carrier, however the five affected airlines had run up revenue losses of $126 million. More than 30,000 airline workers, in addition to the 35 000 striking machinists, were out of work. The prolonged strike was proving a disaster for Hawaii. Miami's tourist loss es were running at $400,000 a

Suddenly, the great, insoluble questions began to cry out for legislative action. The striking members of the International Association of Machinists surely were within their legal rights They had complied with the ap plicable Railway Labor Act. They were not compelled to ac cept the recommendations of any presidential board - even of a presidential board headed Senator Morse. It was undeniable that the five airlines were racking up some formidable

THE CARRIERS had some impressive rights on their side as well. Eastern Air Lines may have earned $29 million in 1965, but it had lost $50 million in the four preceding years. Trans-World Airlines and United Air Lines have flown through rough financial weather. All five of the companies had accepted the recommendations of the presidential board, and agreed to a little more besides. To yield to the demands of the IAM would commit them to similar surrenders to other unions. They could not cave in without damaging the public interest in lowcost air transportation .

Pirates Increase Lead On 5-3 Win

-Keith Prince-

Color Him Successful

Frank Broyles is a man of many talents. He has tional League - leading Pittsproven this time and again since his brilliant four-burgh Pirates past Philadelphia sport high school days at Decatur, Ga. And he proved it again Thursday night.

Watching him move casually among a gathering of approximately 200 men at the Northeast Booster's Club Meeting, it would have been easy to assume Broyles knew these people well, which of course he did not. Before taking the speaker's role near the end of the meeting, it would also have been easy to picture him as a golf lover first, football coach second. Golf is one of Broyles' real loves in athletics. He plays it well and often, almost religiously. In fact, he flew here early enough Thursday to get in a round with Curtis Nichols, Dr. Roy Ledbetter and Tribe coach Lynn LeBlanc. Broyles opened with two birdies before leveling off and shoot ing in the mid-70's at Bayou DeSiard. It occurred to me that Broyles had probably played as many courses as a lot of pros because of his trips to coaching clinics and other football functions. But not so this summer. "Actually," said Broyles, "I've been pretty much on the home course this summer. I haven't accepted any clinics and have tried to spend the past couple of months with my family.

"This is one of the few speaking engagements | Short (L, 11-7) | I've accepted this summer. I do have the Texas | Cardwell O'Dell (W, 4-3) Coaching Clinic coming up next week in Houston, Face HBP-By Short but otherwise it's been quiet - and pleasant.

Then it came turn for the other Frank Broyles to speak, the one shown so often pacing the sidelines with part of his shirt tail out, shouting encouragement, planning, and winning football games.

This is the Frank Broyles you've seen on television, talking sincerely about his boys who "win because they are willing to sacrifice." And, no doubt you've wondered if he is really as sincere, as dedicated, as perfectly fitted for his job as it seems.

Had you been on hand Thursday night you would not be wondering now.

After his talk, centered around the importance of college athletics and the part we, the fans and supporters, must play in helping to improve athletics, Kansas City Broyles was given a standing ovation by the men we

And, don't be mistaken. The ovation was not out 15 of respect for his appearance in Monroe at Dixie White's invitation. It was because this man moves you. He actually is AS sincere, AS dedicated, AS invigorating as he seems. He is a winner.

The Smile Shows Through

Although Broyles has a way of saying the important things in a manner which sticks with you, he also has a great sense of humor which comes to light often while he is speaking.

It was obvious that the 14-7 licking at the hands of LSU in the Cotton Bowl is still pretty heavy on Frank's mind. In fact, he opened his talk with "When I woke up this morning I kept saying to myself, 'Surely I'm not going down there.' I thought sure it would be at least six years before I crossed the bor-

He spoke often about the Cotton Bowl and praised Coach Charles McClendon, his staff and the team for a tremendous effort. "Of course, it still hurts to think about it though. I still haven't looked at the films yet, but guess I'll get around to it sometime."

Then he told the one about his halftime accident at the Cotton Bowl. "You'll remember that LSU had just scored twice right before the half. I was determined to get to our dressing room quickly at intermission to try and regroup forces. Well, I started running for the dressing room and on the way bumped into an elderly little lady and she fell. helped her up and said, 'I beg your pardon, mam, no offense.' She straightened up, looked at me and said, 'That's right, and no defense either.'

Davis May Receive $100,000

NEW ORLEANS (AP) newspaper reported Friday that former Gov. Jimmie Davis stands to receive $108,914.45 in retirement benefits.

The former governor, The New Orleans States - Item already has received more money in retirement benefits than he paid into the system. The newspaper said Davis had paid $10,336.24 into the system and had received $12,891.60 in benefits since he retired in July,

Davis, now 64, receives $537.15 each month in retirement benefits. Under the life expectancy system, he would be expected to receive a total of $108,914.45.

The newspaper said Davis had 27.5 years of credited service with the retirement system. During his 1960-64 term as governor the legislature passed an act which allowed him credit for teaching at Weston, in Jackson Parish, during 1923-26; serving as city court clerk in Shreveport, 1929-1938, and as a member of the Public Service Commission 1942-1944.

The newspaper said James S. Reily, former commissioner of administration under Davis , and the late Earl K. Long, also received additional years of credit under the legislation, act 219.
In August, 1960, the newspaper said Reily paid $3,710.82 to obtain credit in the retirement system for serving on the Cad do Parish School Board from 1935 to 1940 and for serving as commissioner of public utilities in Shreveport from 1940 to 1944.

This enabled him to claim a total of 22.5 years of service to the state, giving him $5,188.32 yearly from the retirement system. The newspaper said he contributed a total of $6,264.65 to the retirement system.

Police Probe Shooting Of Rights Leader

LAUREL, Miss. (AP) - Offi cers probed the shooting early Friday into the home of a Laurel civil rights leader

Police said an undetermined number of rifle bullets was fired into the home of the Rev. Henry C. Clay Jr., vice-president of the Mississippi Council on Human Relations and an active member of the NAACP.

Clay, his wife and son were sleeping into the home at the time, but escaped injury as the bullets slammed into windows and walls of the house.

Officers said the shots probably came from a car passing on the Interstate Hwy. 59 overpass, which runs above Clay's

MOSCOW (UPI) -The petrified fragment of the skull of a man who lived perhaps 40,000 years ago has been unearthed near the ancient city of Samarkand in central Asia, the Soviet News Agency Tass reported Friday.

Uzbek archoelogist David Lev said the skull fragment, which includes ten well-preserved teeth, "definitely are remains of Cro-Magnons, whose habita-tion places have been traced to central Asia, for the first time, Tass said.

Lev, who has been studying the culture of ancient peoples in Asia for more than 40 years, heads an expedition of the Soviet National Academy of Sciences exploring a large site under excavation for many

The skull is the second find of human remains at the Cro-Magnon living site being excavated near Samarkand. The earlier discovery of human bone fragments was made about four years ago.

Non-Smokers Get Recourse To Smokers

City Attorney Mervin E. Holt, an occasional smoker himself has drafted an ordinance that would make exhaling some in the presence of non-smoke a misdemeandor with fines up to $299 or three months imprisonment.

He said the constitutionality of the proposed ordinance is now being studied by the National League of Cities in Washington, D.C

The ordinance was prepared to "protect the civil rights of non-smokers," Holt said.

He hopes his proposed ordinance will result in a U.S. Supreme Court test and a nonprofit organization to protect the rights of non-smokers.

As for Holt: "It looks like I've got to quit now.'

Davis May Receive $100,000

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A newspaper reported Friday that former Gov. Jimmie Davis stands to receive $108,914.45 in retirement benefits.

The former governor, said The New Orleans States - Item already has received more money in retirement benefits than he paid into the system. The newspaper said Davis had paid $10,336.24 into the system and had received $12,891.60 in benefits since he retired in July,

Davis, now 64, receives $537.15 each month in retirement benefits. Under the life expectancy system, he would be expected to receive a total of $108,914.45.

The newspaper said Davis had 27.5 years of credited service with the retirement system. During his 1960-64 term as gov ernor the legislature passed an act which allowed him credit for teaching at Weston, in Jackson Parish, during 1923-26: serving as city court clerk in Shreveport, 1929-1938, and as a member of the Public Service Commission 1942-1944.

The newspaper said James S. Reily, former commissioner of administration under Davis , and the late Earl K. Long, also received additional years of credit under the legislation, act 219. In August, 1960, the newspaper said Reily paid $3,710.82 to obtain credit in the retirement system for serving on the Cad-do Parish School Board from 1935 to 1940 and for serving as commissioner of public utilities in Shreveport from 1940 to 1944.

This enabled him to claim a total of 22.5 years of service to the state, giving him $5,188.32 yearly from the retirement system. The newspaper said he contributed a total of $6,264.65 to the retirement system.

Police Probe Shooting Of Rights Leader

cers probed the shooting early Friday into the home of a Laurel civil rights leader Police said an undetermined number of rifle bullets was fired into the home of the Rev. Henry C. Clay Jr., vice-president of the Mississippi Council on Human Relations and an active member of the NAACP.

Officers said the shots probably came from a car bassing on the Interstate Hwy 59 overpass, which runs above Clay's

Ancient Skull Unearthed In Central Asia

MOSCOW (UPI) —The petrified fragment of the skull of a man who lived perhaps 40,000 years ago has been unearthed near the ancient city of Samarkand in central Asia, the Soviet News Agency Tass reported Friday.

Uzbek archoelogist David Lev said the skull fragment, which includes ten well-preserved teeth, definitely are remains of Cro Magnons, whose habita-tion places have been traced to central Asia, for the first time, Tass said.

Lev, who has been studying the culture of ancient peoples in Asia for more than 40 years, heads an expedition of the Soviet National Academy of Sciences exploring a large site! under excavation for many

The skull is the second find of human remains at the Croliving site being excavated near Samarkand. The earlier discovery of human bone fragments was made about four years ago.

Non-Smokers Get Recourse To Smokers

TREMONTON, Utah (AP) ~ Non-smokers in this northern Utah community may soon have recourse to persons who blow smoke in their face.

City Attorney Mervin E.
Holt, an occasional smoker himself has drafted an ordinance that would make exhaling some in the presence of non-smoke a misdemeandor with fines up to $299 or three months imprisonment

He said the constitutionality of the proposed ordinance is now being studied by the National League of Cities in Washington, D.C. The ordinance was prepared to "protect the civil rights of non-smokers," Holt said.

As for Holt "It looks like I'v got to quit now.

Missing U2 Pilot Former Football Star

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP)-Capt. Robert D. Hickman, 32, the U2 pilot who disappeared Thursday on a flight to Latin America, was a native of Alexandria and the father of six children.

Mrs. Hickman, the former Pauline Ann Cicardo, also of Alexandria, and the children live here.

A spokesman for the family had not given up hope he would be found alive.

The children are Robert David Jr., 8; Paul Martin, 7; Mamie Kathryn, 6; Angel Marie, 3; Celeste Lillian, 2, and Teresa

Hickman is the son of Martin R. Hickman, assistant chief of police for Alexandria.

As an elusive halfback, young Hickman won an athletic scholarship to the University of Southwestern Louisiana. In 1955 he quit college to enter the Air Force cadet training program. His first assignment was in the Philippine Islands. Later he was an instructor at bases in Green-ville, Miss., and Valdosta, Ga.

Hickman began flying the U2 high altitude reconnaissance plane last August. His current duty base is Tucson, Ariz. He temporarily assigned to Barksdale Air Force Base at Shreveport, when he took off Thursday on what was described as a routine flight.

The gallbladder may contain innumberable tiny stones, many no larger than a grain of sand. In contrast is the single, large rough stone of pure crystalline cholesterol. This "solitaire" may become so big it forms a cast of the gall sac but is less likely to be as troublesome as the 25 to 100 round, pea-sized pebbles made from calcium and bile

When these little stones wander away from home, especially at night, they cause colic on getting stuck in the bile passage-way leading to the intestine. The sufferer is seized suddenly with severe agonizing pain in the upper abdomen, near the right rib border, which also is felt in the back and the region of the right shoulder.

Removal of the organ is the only guarantee that another attack will not occur. I am nearing 65 and would like to know if I can get my Social Security, instead of the Old Age Pension. I think Old Age checks can only be paid if one remains in the state, and I would like to travel.

Assuming you are qualified for Social Security (if you have credit for a certain amount of work under Social Security, earned at any time after 1936), yes, you may collect Social Security benefits. Social Security will be paid no matter where you are in the United States, and even in some foreign countries.

Can the government collect income tax on my Social Security checks every

No. Social Security benefits ou receive are not subject to Federal Income tax.

When did the first Acadian immigrants arrive in Louisiana?

The first group consisted of four families and they arrived in Louisiana from New York on April 6, 1764.

What ruler established the first police force in New Orleans?

He was the Spanish Governor Carondelet, who in addition to establishing a police force, also established the first system of street lighting in New Orleans.

Where and when was the first gas well located in Louisiana?

The first gas well in the state was brought in near Natchitoches in 1823. At that time it was not thought to be of any value.

Who and when erected the Pontalba buildings in New Orleans?

They were erected in 1849 by the Baroness Pontalba who desired to beautify the Place d'Armes. James Gallier is reputed to have been the architect

When was the Louisiana Department of Public Works established? It was established on June 26,

What is the Louisiana State flower and when was it so designated?

The state flower is the large, creamy white bloom of the mag nolia. It was officially designated the state flower by the Legislature on July 12, 1900, and was selected because there is such an abundant growth of magnolia trees throughout the state.

What is the official song of Louisiana? It is entitled "Song of Louisi ana" and was composed by Vashti Stephen. It was established as the official song of the state by an Act of the Legislature in 1932. Incidentally, in 1952, the Legislature adopted the official March song entitled "Louisiana, My Home Sweet Home," which was written by Castro Carazzo.

How do you go about finding whether a certain object has a patent on it? Also, if it has been patented, for how long, and when will the patent expire?

Patented objects usually bear that stamp, plus the patent number. It is suggested, if, after a thorough unsuccessful search of the object in mind, you contact a patent attorney. A local law firm could possibly help you find such a lawyer specializing in patent searches.

Car Rental Business Not Same Since Airline Strike Began Three Weeks Ago

And in Seattle, Wash., a company official complains didn't have one auto available for rent Thursday morning bescattered from New York to Florida

This scattering of autos owned by the big one-way rental agen-cies has been one of the big effects of the airline strike on the car rental business, according to an Associated Press survey. The survey also showed:

-Airport-based rental companies which depend heavily on incoming travelers report business has taken a nose dive.

-For agencies more centrally located, business is normal, and in some cases even booming

Rotary Club Hears Talk From Coach

Team growth, an excellent staff, and experienced players will assure better scoring results this year for the Northeast Louisiana State College football team, coach Dixie White told members of the Monroe Rotary Club Thursday at the club's weekly dinner meeting.

Coach White gave Rotary
members facts about the new sports stadium at the college and added that the new facility is expected to be ready for the first game in the fall.

Coach White was substitute speaker for Frank Broyles, head coach at the University of Arkansas, who was unable to be present. White introduced other Northeast coaches, who discussed team tactics. They were Lynn LeBlanc, Bill Dotson, Ralph Lane and Wallace Hargon.

The speaker discussed improvements to be made at the new stadium and discussed the future of the college's football

Hungarian Refugee To Be Buried

ALBANY, La. (AP) - The body of a penniless Hungarian refugee who died on the streets of New Orleans in May will be buried Sunday in a cemetery

The minister and congregation of the Albany Presbyterian Church here saved the refugee's body from a probable dissection in a medical school to lay it to rest in a cemetery where many of the refugee's countrymen are

Joseph Harmat, who fled Hungary during the 1956 revolution, became a naturalized citizen last year and was living on a social security pension.

After his death, the Albany church offered to give Harmat's body a Christian burial, but Louisiana law prohibited anyone but the next of kin from claiming

Under ordinary circumstances, the body would go to a medical school after 90 days, but the Louisiana State Anatomical Board reversed its decision and allowed the Rev. Alexander Bartus to claim the body for burial Harmat's wife is still living behind the iron curtain.
